Rakino

Designed by Tim Rundle

morganfurniture.co.uk

Rakino is a timeless, aesthetically simple, but technically complex collection offering two lounge chairs, three dining chairs and a selection of coffee and dining tables.

Manufactured using both CNC machinery, hand finished techniques and craft, the collection offers a delicate sturdiness in both its seating and table variants, which can be tailored to use complex upholstery and timber or stone finishes.

Soft, flowing joints are balanced with a clean angular profile, imbuing every piece with a quiet, confident modernity.

The Rakino lounge chair is a clean and elegant piece that brings quiet luxury to contract settings. Designed as a slightly more relaxed piece to complement the dining chair collection, the lounge chair combines an upright frame with a softer, enveloping back.

Exuding refined comfort, it sits confidently by itself or when combined with other pieces in the collection.

“Morgan’s manufacturing processes and techniques were the starting point for me. Their skill and knowledge in timber frame construction presented an opportunity to push things creatively. There’s a certain aesthetic that I’m drawn to, this idea of parts that feel completely separate, contrasting with elements that flow seamlessly into each other, it was something Morgan’s manufacturing capabilities allowed me to explore.”

“The finished piece was a frame that looked entirely handmade, but represented a perfect balance of machining and hand finishing.”

The Rakino dining chair offers comfort and elegance with a clean, minimalist profile. The new timber back model has been designed to offer a lighter chair to complement the collection.

The architectural profile, flowing joints and elegant silhouette has been maintained in its design using the same manufacturing combination of hand craft and CNC machinery. Sitting comfortably amongst the more upholstered pieces in the range, this model offers a deeper seat and a lighter back, but the same timeless elegance and quiet luxury synonymous with Rakino.

Further enriching the collection are the new sculptural dining tables. Available with either a single or twin pedestals, each piece follows the collection's clean, architectural silhouette, flowing details and elegant craftsmanship.

With its timeless, yet modern aesthetic, Rakino dining tables are perfectly suited to hospitality dining spaces as well as meetings rooms. The smaller single pedestal table is available in a variety of timber finishes, as well as marble and terrazzo tops.
